MORT SAHL

Mort Sahl Takes Stage At Basin St.

By LEONARD HARRIS

Buying tractors is in the news... and Mort Sahl latched on to it for his great opening last night at Basin Street East.

The comic with the open shirt took good care of Cuba: "I'll give money for a tractor but I want to know who I'm getting back."

And of Guevara: "The name of the Cuban bank is Che's National Bank."

About Robert Kennedy's probe of the CIA: "Little Brother is watching you."

Covering his usual range of topical material, Sahl is entertaining and good-natured. He tops an outstanding show, supported by the Lilmelsters and Peter Nero, who come in for lively tunes.

Basin Street East, at 137 E. 48th St., has a $3 music charge per person, but no minimum.
